Kim and Reggie Harris will sing songs from their album "Music from the Underground Railroad" at a concert to be held Friday, May 13, at 8:00 PM at Trinity Reformed Church, 483 Ferry St., Newark.

The concert proceeds will benefit the Ironbound Peace Education Project and Trinity Reformed Church. Tickets are $5.00, and $3.00 for senior citizens and children.

Kim and Reggie Harris have delighted and inspired Newark audiences in what has come to be an annual benefit concert. The musicians, who are from Philadelphia, play hundreds of concerts each year at colleges, churches and community organizations around the country and have a national reputation. Their performance always includes freedom songs and stories of the Underground Railroad, peace songs, and original songs.

The Ironbound Peace Education Project holds annual poster and essay contests for Newark students, to encourage the discussion of peace issues by young people. Trinity Reformed Church is active in the community in a variety of ways, including supporting the neighborhood fight against pollution, and maintaining a food bank and a clothing distribution center for people who are experiencing hard times.

Trinity Reformed Church is located at 483 Ferry St., in the Ironbound section of Newark. For tickets or directions, call 344-7210.
